The police confirmed newspaper reports that the network had planned in the near future to assassinate government offi-cials, including Gen. Dayan, but a spokesman said he could not verify reports that kidnappings were considered, too.

The national radio said the targets of small-arms and bomb attacks were to have been leaders considered "chauvinistic" by the organization.

According to the Jerusalem Post. Gen. Dayan was "high on the list" and "the assassinations were scheduled to be carried out soon, but the security forces moved in last week before they could carry out their plans and arrested them.

Maariy and Yedioth Ahronoth said that the ring also planned to hold kidnapped officials hostage in exchange for either imprisoned Arab guerrillas or in demand of a softening of Israel's policy toward the Arabs.

There was no indication who else was on the list for assasi-nation or kidnapping. Gen, Dayan escaped unharmed from one previous attack on his life, in the mid-1950s, when be was armed forces chief of staff. Now he is constantly guarded. Unknown Intentions

"Some members of the ring took interest in some security person-alities with unknown intentions." said a spokesman for the Northern Police Command, in control of the investigation.

The spokesman said that more arrests were expected in the case. The ring already had passed un-apecified information to the Syrians, he said, and searches of the members' homes turned up guns, ammunition and explosives.

Demograts won a new Communists are likely to have term at the helm of Japan's substantial impact on both the ione and the nature of political debate in the months ahead. The Communist gains and those of the nation's second-ranking party, the Japan Socialists, are expected to make it more difficult for Mr. Tanaka to take politically controversial actions—particularly those in which he seems to be interests of the United States.

In a press conference today, Mr. Tanaka expressed disappointment at the election results, but called them a spur to make his ruling party do a better job. Along with nearly everyone else, the premier appeared to be startled and somewhat puzzled by the Communist surge. "I never thought they would get so many seats." be said. His party won 282 seats,

Steering Committee

The Communists won far more than the required number of seats to demand and obtain a place on the highly important Steering Committee, which manages the proceedings of the Diet. This is strategic bargaining position. Moreover, the new position as third-ranking party will give the Communists an unassailable right to equal and respectful treatment In television appearances and news coverage-something they have often lacked.

The Socialist party gained 31 more seats for a total of 116 and cemains the second pacty. Its comeback from its losses in 1969 restores to vigor the most formidable of the opposition parties, and the one with the most extensive political base-in this case. organized labor. Tactical errors in the 1969 election, which the party was careful to avoid this year appear to have been influential in the party's changing fortunes

The decline of the quasi-religious Komelto, with 29 seats, down from 47 won in 1969, and the splinter-group Democratic Socialists, who won 19 seats, down from 29, saps the strength of the moderate and middling elements of the body politic, leaving the field to the Liberal Democrats (actually the conservative party) and the Socialists and Communists well to the left. Komeito had been confident of at least maintaining its 47 votes even though it was running this year for the first time as a secular party without the formal backing of the Sokka Gakkai Buddhist group which spawned it. The Democratic Socialists had hoped to increase their strength to 51 seats. Leaders of hoth these parties expressed dismay today at what they conceded were serious

The Texan, a frequent critic of administration economic policy, said that he hoped the hearings would lead to improving both the law and its administration "so that we can have real price stubility, something we have not yet achieved."

Meanwhile, the Democratic majority of the congressional Joint Economic Committee disagreed with the Nixon administration's position almost totally. In a report based on 23 days of hearings held carlier this year. the Democrats on the joint committee said today that the present control system has failed to control unemployment. It recommended that controls be removed os soon as possible and ceplaced "some form of incomes policy."

Last Army Advisers To Be Withdrawn

By Colin Chapman SYDNEY, Dec. 11 (WP).— Australia's involvement in the Vietnam war will end by New Year's Day, Delense Minister Lance Barnard said today.

He announced that army advicers left behind to train South Vietnamese and Cambodian troops following the main Australian pullout last March "will all be out inside three weeks." The announcement was the latest of a stream of changes put through by the new Labor Prime Minister, Gough Wiltlam. In the week since he was sworn in Mr. Whitlam has put a new face on Australian foreign policy. Because his administration has to be selected by the full Labor parliamentary membership and because some seats from the Dec. 2 general elections are still in doubt, Mr. Whitlam has taken on temporary responsibility for 13 ministries and allocated 14 others to Mr. Barnard. The two have been pushing through reforms that are agreed Labor party policy and that do not require parliamentary approval. Thus Mr. Whitlam has banned

South African sports teams from Australia, ordered the Rhodesian information center shut, ended compulsory military service and released imprisoned draft dodgers, withdrawn Australia's ambassador from Taiwan and moved toward recognizing Peking and establishing an embassy there.

Further, he held the first news conference by a prime minister in a year, announced the end of taxation on wine and approved equal pay for women.

Next, he ended royal tours of Australia—while making it plain that Queen Elizabeth II would be welcome on less formal visits—and scrapped the new year's honors list prepared by his predecessor, William McMahon.

His wife Margaret has also been breaking precedents. She said, for example, that she no longer thought marriage was as impor-tant as it was 30 year ago and saw no reason why childless couples should not live together.

Asked how she would decorate The Lodge, the prime minister's residence in Canberra, Mrs. Whitlam replied, "with people." She also issued a statement supporting legalized abortioo and indicating a changed attitude toward marijuana.

Mr. Whitlam has aidestepped these issues by saying that he has not discussed them with his wife, but he has ended the sales tax on contraceptives. He has ordered a number of other domestic reforms, including the promise of tax cuts for the poor,

But the area in which change is most marked from previous Australian policy is foreign afmost at the United Nations, where the Austr denly been voting with thirdworld nations on a number of important issues, particularly the Rhodesian question.

Mrs. Binh Backs Off

Meanwhile, Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, foreign minister of the Viet Cong's provisional revolutionary government, issued a statement backing off from remarks attributed to her in an interview Friday with Agence France-Presse, the French news service.

Objecting to "more or less in-exact interpretations" of her interview, she reiterated longstanding Communist insistence that any withdrawal of troops would have to be negotiated after a cease-fire between the Viet Cong and the South Vietnamese government

The AFP dispatch had seemed to suggest a possible compromise on the key problem still believed holding up agreement on the cease-fire; withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops from South Vietnam, which Salgon demands and Hanoi rejects.

In the interview she was said to have suggested that after a cease-fire "soldiers originating in the North, [and] demobilized in the South, could go home."

But her statement, issued after a meeting with Mr. Tho yester-day, appeared designed to put an end to such suggestions. Fire-Bomb Attack

Adding to the growing tension around the talks was a fire-bomb attack near the North Vietnamsse general delegation, just off the Boulevard du Montparnasse on the Left Bank.

Four young man threw the bombs near the mission, but the explosives went off without caus-ing damage. French news media received a telephone call later in the day from a little-known rightist organization claiming credit for the attack, which was designed "to teach the Commu-

In last July's 2-1 ruling oo the Hatch Act, a district court in Washington said the law was overly broad and violated workers First Amendment rights. The two-judge majority held that a 1947 decision upholding the law was "outmoded by passage of time" and by subsequent rulings regarding First Amendment rights.

In appealing, the government called the law a "cornerstone of the merit civil sevice system." Solicitor General Erwin N. Griswold and other Justice De-

An LSD Link Is Seen Possible Hungarian, In High Rate of Birth Defects

By Victor Cohn

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 (WP). data so far" on long-range LSD -A life style that included LSD. very probably impure LSD, as well as other drugs, diseases and bad nutrition, led to an abnormally high number of birth defects in the babies of 140 young women in the Washington area.

The LSD alone cannot be blamed because there were too many other factors to say whether or not it was partly or wholly responsible, according to doctors who examined the 140 women at Washington University Medical Center.

Whether LSD can cause birth defects is still a matter of medical debate.

"What we can say," said Dr. Cheston M. Berlin, "is that these mothers were a very, very high risk group, that there was something about them that made them different.

"The message is probably that if you're pregnant," or thinking of becoming pregnant, "doo't take any drug," he said. Of 148 pregnaucies in these 140 women-in all cases, either the prospective mother or father reported taking LSD before or after conception—there were the following abnormalities: • Eight of 83 newborns (the number of pregnancies actually resulting in births) had "major coogeoital defects," 10 to 20 times the number cormally expected. These included what Dr. Cecil B. Jacobson and Dr. Berlin say they have oot found reported anywhere in medicai literature: a without feet.

• Twelve mothers suffered spontaneous abortions. Fetuses expelled in this way commonly ssess defects.

· Fifty-three of the women had therapeutic abortions. Four of 14 embryos that were intact enough for analysis showed "gross · Six women in the group had more than one baby during the main period of observation. All of these women bad a normal baby the first time. But four of eight later pregnancies ended in abnormal fetuses or (in one case) an abnormal newborn.

The observation period was 1988 to 1970, and the full report, including recent follow-up, is published in the Journal of the American Medical Association. LSD was in wide use in the "drug culture" in 1968. It is still taken today, though the use of amphetamines (also known as "apeed") far outstrips it.

Dr. Maimon Cohen of the State University of New York at Buffalo first reported in 1967 that LSD broke chromosomes (carriers of genetic material inside cells) in the test tube. But studies of the drug's effects on animal babies were in conflict. Human studies have conflicted as well.

Two Californians looked at 120 live offspring of 247 parents who had taken LSD. They found a moderately high incidence of abortions, but concluded: "There is no evidence of a relation be-tween parental LSD exposure and major congenital defects in their offspring." A new book, "Licht and Illicit Drugs," by Edward M. Brecher and the editors of Consumers Union, an independent product research organization, calls this study "by far the best

Two Russians Tie in Chess

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Dec. 11 (UPI).—Two Russians and a Huagarian were tied for first place after the final round of the San Antonio international chess tournament vesterday.

Lajos Portisch, of Hungary, and Russians Anopoly Karpov and Tigran Petrosian each finished with 10 1 2 points. They will share the $7.000 first; prize.

Fourth place in the 15-round tournament will not be decided until tonight, because some of the games played during the weekend were adjourned. But there is no way any player in tonight's games could catch the leaders. Karpov, 20, and Petrosian played their opponents to draws, apparently preplanned, and moved a first-place tie. They then watched the match between Portisch and Bent Larsen, of Denmark, along with 400 other spectators, including world chest champion obby Fischer.

Fischer did not compete in the San Antonio games, but came by to observe the final round. He criticized the Russians for what he said was their proctice of agreeing to a draw when they play each other during a round-robin tournament, thus assuring both nlayers half a point.

THESE OLD MEDALS date way back to the day when whiskeytasting contests were important competitions held all over the world.

They don't have international contests between distillers any more. But, you can be sure, Jack Daniel's Whiskey won more than their share back in the days when they did. For instance, the medals shown here were won at Liege in 1905, at Ghent in 1913 and at the Anglo American Exposition in London. The one we're proudest of (The Gold Medal, bottom right) was presented by a panel of international judges to the "World's Finest Whiskey" at the St. Louis

Today, you can judge the taste of Jack Daniel's yourself by asking for it at duty-free shops throughout Europe. Or, if you prefer sampling just a sip or two, stop by one of the bars or restaurants listed below. We think you'll be pleased when you do.

Italy's Christian Democrats Ask Drastic Social Reforms

Experts attending the meeting of Italy's largest political force warned the nation that protracted economic stagnation might lead to a weakening of the democratic system, possibly to a new authoritarianism or to some form of "neocolonialism" in which Italy would supply manpower for West-ern Europe while foreigners would control most of its economy. that as iong as terrorists confined their targets to British soldiers in Ulster, no arrest should be made.

Their reasoning has run along these lines: Mr. Lynch is responsible for peace in the republic, not Ulster. He was not elected to solve London's policing problem in Beifast. The IRA is a danger when its gunmen, bot from an action, flee to sanctuaries in the South or stir up political feeling against the Duhlin regime.

The killing of civilians on either side of the border is atrocious but attacks on British soldicrs are something else again. After all, Mr. Lynch's own Figure Fail party celebrates as beroes men who did precisely the same thing a generation or two ago.

One Known Arrest

As far as is known, there has been only one arrest under the new law. Michael Montgomery, a former British internee at Long Kesh, was picked up on Friday as he was about to return to his home across the border in Londonderry.

But Mr. Montgomery, an obscure figure, appears to be a member of the Official IRA, the generally nonmilitent and vaguely Marxist wing. It is the hombthrowing and gun-slinging Provisional IRA that unsophisticated persons thought Mr. Lynch would act against. In the event, Mr. Montgomery has now been re-

The best known Provisional IRA names in the republic, Rory O'Brady and David O'Connell have not been touched. They do not answer their telephones and their wives and in-laws are uncoolmunicative about their where-

In contrast, some 34 men and women, all members of the Official IRA's political front, were jailed last Wednesday for picketing the home of Mr. Lynch and another deputy. Miss Mairin de Burca, the joint general secretary of the official Sinn Pein, got three months for "watching and besetting."

The officials are a logical target for Mr. Lynch. They preach social revolution and try to stir political passions among Mr. Lynch's generally conservative constituency.

There is, of course, no assurance that the Provisionals will remain unscathed and they almost certainly won't if they make fresh troubles for Mr. Lynch in the republic. Their leader, Sean MacStlofain, was convicted before the new law was enacted and the lack of outcry over his arrest has emboldened the Lynch camp.

But those with the slimmest knowledge of Irish history know it is hard for Mr. Lynch to crack down on Provisionals. Mr. Lynch's perty was originally formed by IRA men who fought the Dublin recime after it had made peace with and won independence from Britain.

The Provicionals were more or less created three years ago by some of Mr. Lynch's former fellow cabinet ministers and were initially financed from Dublin.

India, Pakistan Sign Maps Showing New Kashmiri Line NEW DELHI, Dec. 11 (AP.,-

India and Pakistan took a major step today toward carrying out their live-month-old peace agreement when two generals signed maps drawing the line separating their forces in Kashmir.

Both countries have said that once the line of control is drawn in Kashmir, 5,139 square miles of territory captured by Ind'a and 69 square miles taken hy Pakistan in last December's war will be exchanged.

The troop withdrawals are a major element of the peace agreement signed by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India and President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto of Pakistan on July 3 at the Indian hill station of Simla. The terri-tory was to have been exchanged by early September, but India insisted that the 500-mile Kashmiri line be drawn first, and negotiations bogged down.

Lt. Gen. P.S. Bhagat and Lt. Gen. Abdul Hamid Khan, the area commanders of Indian and Pakistani forces, signed the maps todoy at Sucheigarh, an outpost in Indian Kashmir.

The ceremony took 15 minutes. "General, I hope your pen is working all right." Gen. Bhagar said as they signed the first of The maps incorporated an agreement reached last week be-tween the two armies' chiefs of staff, Gen. Sam Manekshaw of India and Gen. Tikka Khan of Pakistan. Both countries were reported to have made concessions to break the deadlock over an area of less than two square miles.

Details of the concessions were been resolved through negotiation and accommodation." The agreement, be said, would lead to a reduction of tensions on the Indian subcontinent and "to the implementation of the first step of the Simla agreement, that disengagement of troops."

Gen. Bhegat was said to have agreed and commented: "After the delineation, the implementation of the rest of the Simla agreement will follow smoothly." Gen. Tikka Khan said last week that the maps would be approved within 12 days and that the withdrawals would be finished shortly thereafter. Progress on Hijacking With Cuba

Secretary Rogers reports that negotiations through the Swiss have produced the "foundation of an agreement" on a hijacking treaty with Cuba. This is encouraging news. The hijacking of American plenes to Cuoa has rightly terrified air travelers; the assurance of harsh punishment would surely he'p limit that threat. On its par, Havana sees Cubans' hljacking of Cuban ahips to the United States, or their departure by other "illegal means," as a threat to the integrity of the Castro government; to that they correctly link the pluprick raids of Americanbased Cuban exiles which, it is reported, the United States has now said it will work harder to stop.

Fidel Gastro's decision to resume the airlift that, before its suspension last year, had brought 256,000 Cobans to Miami can perhaps be read as his way to offer a certain legal alternative to those who may have considered violent hijacking or nonviolent escape as the only ways to leave Cuba. The airift cannot be a substitute for the orderly legal emigration that presumably would go on if Cuban-American political relations were normalized. Even then there might be a problem: More Cubans might wish to smigrate than the United States wished to accept. But Mr. Castro could hardly consider that as anything but a problem for his own solving. It is a fact of life with which he (as well as Washington) must cope, that the United States is only a short 90 miles away. In any event, normal political ties would certainly provide a viable alternative to hijacking for any Americans, except psychopaths, who might wish to go to Cuba.

From all accounts, the initiative on the American side for this round of dealing with Cuba has come from the State Department, which is taking-or being given-the opportunity to show its diplomatic stuff. State has had too few such opportunities in recent years. Evidently with one eye on a wary White House and the other on a wilv Fldel Castro, State is being careful not to portray the hijack taiks as the first step toward a possible accommodation, even though they obviously could be made to serve that purpose if both sides choose. But the talks proceed, despite a few mumbles from the Pentagon about Moscow's sometime use of Cuba as a submarine and air reconnaissance station. Mr. Nixon's summits in Moscow and Peking have made those mumbles much less audible. and much less necessary or relevant, than they ever were before. Few Latins take seriously any longer the old argument, etill put forward by some Americans in their behalf, that Fidel is bent on subverting them. Rather, most Latins seem to see in a potential Cuban-American accommodation a step at once restoring the hemisphere's natural but interrupted sense of community, permitting them more easily to normalize their own relations with Havana, and offering many Latin governments the been of satisfying their own domestic constituencies on the left Unquestionably, hemispheric accommodation with Havana could play an important role in facilitating the more active and helpful second-term approach to Latin America that we hope Mr. Nixon has in mind.

Justified Mass Murder?

'As Henry Kissinger labors mightily in Paris to bring home the peace for which so many Americans have yearned so long, the American military system ecemed determined to bring forth just one last obscenity before the firing closed. And so, an Army officer did it the other day in a military courtroom in Falls Church, Capt. J. Houston Gerdon, arguing the appeal of Lt. William Calley's conviction of the murder of civilians at My Lai, told the court that because the fight in Vietnam is a guerrilla war, the villagers weren't qualified for the protection accorded to prisoners of war in conventional wars.

Did you get that? We didn't get it the first time around either, so we'll run over it just one more time. The villagers, according to the argument, were not readily identifiable as non-combatants and thus, they bore the burden of proof of demonstrating their noncombatant status. If they don't meet that burden, then what? Well, Capt. Gordon made that pretty clear when one of the judges asked whether that theory would not make soldiers. The captain answered "yes."

So, there you have it: An argument pressed seriously in an American military court that says civilians—including women and children -could legally be slaughtered in Vietnam if they hadn't proved their noninvolvement to the satisfaction of the U.S. military. It is true that the Geneva Convention did not envision guerrilla war. But this hardly lends logic to the Army's legal argument. To reason that some Vietnamese are Viet Cong. that all Vietnamese look alike, and that therefore all Vietnamese can be slaughtered unless they hurry up and prove the contrary, is as absurd as it is blood-curdling and obscene.

Even if the rules of war are silent on the subject, humanity, intelligence and common sense would dictate a different course. People suspected of being hostile can be rounded up, detained and questioned. A silence in the law and some officer's suspicions constitute no license for mass murder. For a United States Army officer to so argue is to demean the Army, the system of military justice and the United States.

Exemplary Peacemakers

The army chiefs of India and Pakistan have eliminated a small but critical obstacle to peace on the subcontinent with their agreement on the last disputed segment of a Kashmir cease-fire line.

Establishment of the Kashmir 'line of control" clears the way for implementation of last July's Simia accord between Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India and President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto of Pakistan. This would mean the return of 5,000 square miles of Indian-occupied territory to Pakistan, a boon that should encourage Mr. Bhutto to take the next important step-recognition of Ban-

Although the pace of negotiations on the subcentinent has been agonizingly slow, the Kashmir agreement once more signals the determination of both Mr. Bhutto and Mrs. Gandhi to move forward toward a comprehensive settlement. The readiness of the two leaders and their subordinates to thrash out their differences in face-to-face talks and to make concessions for peace sets a notable example for other international disputants. especially to the petulant odd man out in the subcontinental negotiations so far-Sheikh Mujibur Rahman of Bangladesh.

A Scrooge in Rhodesia?

If Ian Smith can pass laws with a discriminatory flavor and still show convincingly that he has wrought a change of heart among Africans, he is indeed a remarkable man, But there are signs that he is losing his sureness of touch at times and is in danger of becoming a scrooge in constitutional issues. The Rhodesian prime minister does not exactly present to his people the benevolent mien of a national leader. Meanwhile, finance still pinches Rhodesia hard. Sympathetic governments in the antipodes have been overthrown. The United Nations assembly becomes more vindictive. Not a good time to risk losing good will.

NATO in 1973

In the year shead it will be up to the free part of Europe to help itself. The West European NATO partners taken tegether have mere men and a greater industrial potential than Brezhnev's vast totalitarian empire. They cannot expect the Americans to continue carrying an unreasonable excessive portion of the burden of their defense. U.S. Secretary of State Rogers declared in Brussels that, in the period following the end of the Vietnam war, Europe will be the focal point of American foreign policy. But this cannot mean a soft featherbed on which an expanded Common Market can rest and grow. For the coming year of super-negotiations-a year that will also bring expiration of the McMahon Act, which has thus far blocked closer nuclear cooperation between France and Great Britain... NATO's primary function will be to actively remind Europe that prosperity without defense is illusory and détente without adequate fundamental security would be estastrophic self-deception. -From the Neue Zuercher Zeitung (Zurich).

LONDON.—At what we hope is the brink of success for Henry Kissinger, in his long search for peace in Vietnam, it is fascinating to look back at the paper in which he roughed out his approach to the negotiations. That was his article of January, 1969, in Foreign Affairs, Unlike many American officials before and since, Kissinger did not deceive himself about a military victory around the corner. He saw that the U.S. government had to be limited. He was realistic about the streopths and weaknesses of the two sides, perceiving with particular foresight that the international situation was "precarious" for Hanoi.

He was skeptical of the two most widely discussed possible perchisting objectives, a coalition government or a cease-fire. The latter, he warned, would make South Vietnam "a crazy quilt, with enclaves of conflicting loyalties all over the country." A ceasefire would also raise severe problems of verification, enforcement and control of guerrilla activity.

'Staged Withdrawal'

Kissinger concluded that the United States should seek not a negotiated political solution but a limited military one—a "staged withdrawal" by American and North Vietnamese forces, leaving the conflicting parties in South Victnam to work out the political future. That would meet the crucial objective of "ending the war honorably."

Four years later, it appears that the terms of any agreement finally made with Le Duc Tho would meet Rissinger's 1969 ideas only in part. There has been no mutual withdrawal of ferces, and there is little likelihood of a fermal promise by Hanoi to pull the troops out. The United States has accepted the idea of a ceasefire, necessarily.

On the other hand, Kissinger did succeed in separating the two tracks, military and political. The peace terms tentatively agreed in October would allow the United States to pull all its forces out of South Vietnam with the political future there still open—and with our man, Nguyen Van Thisu, still in power in Saigon. What Kissinger did not forese or did not project in Foreign Affairs, was the cost of meeting some of his aims.

Didn't Tell Us

He did not tell us that we would have to drop another 4 million tons of bombs on Indochina to achieve our negotiating objectives in part. Or spend another 20,000 American lives. Or send another 50,000 soldiers home with serious wounds.

Nor did Kissinger have, or convey, any idea of what it would cost the people of the two Vietnams, Laos and Cambodia to have his minimum negotiating sims reached. He did not tell us that South Vietnam alone would suffer upwards of 80,000 soldiers killed and 240,000 wounded, 165-000 civilians dead and 400,000 wounded, an estimated 1.85 million made bomeless,

It is fair to say that Kissinger probably did not eovisage costs of that kind when he published his negotiating formula. For be wrote that he did not believe a "prolonged" negotiation was possible. What, then, went wrong, so far as we can identify it, on ture in the South would be open. At the same time it was helping to build Thien into a figure with enormous military and autocratic political power.

Vietnam has 1 million men under arms—the equivalent of 12 mil-lion in the United States in terms of population. Thieu's police force numbers 119,000: 15,000 or 20,000 of those in the special branch. Thousands of civilians are held in prison without trial, among them some of the independent non-Communists with whom Americans would naturally

But here, at least, seems to be in some respects that the more things change the more they stay the same.

The new man in charge here is Rudolf Gamsjäger, for many years concert director of the Musikverein, and a large part of his first three months in office seems to have been taken up with a running battle with the hardcore opera andience—the standees and, to a lesser extent, some

The battle was joined at the beginning of the season when Helga. Dernesch was treated roughly by the standers after a performance of "Fidelio." The riposte was a ban on solo curtain cells, which effectively preventsprotesters from singling oot the objects of their disaffection. The ban has been somewhat softened, at least to the point of allowing solo curtains when no boos and whistles are expected. But the struggle has continued with negrtive reactions to some aspects of the season's two new productions so far, "Don Giovanni" and "The Gamsjäger seemed to be taking deliberate risks with casting innovations in on opera that the Viennese remember only too well from the recent past with the likes of Böhm. The Berlioz is a rare liem in Viennese concert halls, and the orchestra played it with much attention to detail and rich orchestral coloring—although the hues were perhaps somewhat subdued by comparison with what a good French orchestra would have produced. With the Strauss, this orchestra is entirely at home, so much so that it must be a formidable undertaking for a guest conductor. Still, the orchestra was attentive to Maazel in a beautifully balanced, musical and unhombastic performance, with Gerhart Hetzel pouring cut rich tone in the solo violin part.

Dutch Painting

An exhibition of Dutch paint-ing, sponsored jointly by museums in Lille, Arras and Dunkerque, France, is currently on view in Lille. The exhibition will be on view in Lille until Dec. 31. From there, it moves to Arras (January and February) and Dunkerque (Merch 15 to April 30). The joint venture, drawing on the collections of the three museums, includes works fi-lustrative of late 16th-century mannerism through the naturalism of the 18th century.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 (NYT). A new kind of trade legislation, including a system of safe-guards for industries and workers damaged by steeply rising imports, has strong backing within he administration.

The legislation, proposed for submission to Congress early next year, would contain the traditional authority for reducing tariffs, to enable trade negotiations with other countries to begin late next year. But the scope of the bill would be far broader than tariffs.

A tentative title for the bill is the Trade Reform Act. This would emphasize its difference from the straightforward tariffcutting legislation of the past like the Trade Expansion Act of 1962, the last major trade bill passed by Congress.

President Nixon has yet to make a decision on both the nature of trade legislation to be presented and the important tactical issue of when to present it. Those backing the Trade Reform Act believe the best strategy would be to ask for consional consideration—start. ing in the House Ways and Means Committee-as soon as possible in the new session. As envisaged by ita backers, the new bill would have three buying power of the American public seems certain to swamp retailers this month as people go on an unprecedented Christmas buying spree. And this at a time when a majority of plants are turning at 90 percent capacity and when the list of production materials in short supply is steadily growing. No one can say whether there facts point to an overbrating economy, but the question is worth consideration. The mild recession of recent years chilled spending enthusiasm as the public went into a phase of saving. Now the urge to spend is ramnant. Retail sales are rapidly approaching the level of $40 billion a month—compared with a monthly average of $20.5 billion in 1963.

Machine tool orders in October, lattened expecially by rising demand from domestic manufacturers, more than doubled those of a year

Much attention has been given to idle plant capacity in the United States, but here, too, things are changing rapidly.

In a report for November, the National Association of Purchasing Agents said that 57 percent of members surveyed reported plants are running at 90 percent of capacity or bigher. A year ogo, only 36 percent reported such a figure.

The report also stressed a stretching-out of delivery on production materials, and a steadily growing list of materials in short supply. "Shortages," it warned, "are threatening to become a major concern of the current expansion. The November list (of short supply ttems) is significaptly larger thon that of any other month for the past reveral years."

On the November short-supply list: Zinc, castings, electric motors, electrical parts, fuel off, natural gas, lumber particularly plywood and hardwoods; bearings, paper (particularly corrugated and kraft, soda ash, FVC resin, and caustic soda. A year ago, only three items were listed in short supply.

None of this may be ground for real alarm about overbeating. But when hig industries start paying triple-pay to keep plants going in the ristmas holidays, when factory operations move up above the 90-percent-of-capacity line, when delivery times get long and shortage lists rapidly grow-it may be well to hedge some bets.

Payments Deficit Worsens in Italy In Latest Month

ROME, Dec. 11 (AP-DJ),---Italy's balance of payments worsened again in October, totaling a deficit of 177 billion lire compared with 167.4 billion lire in September, the Bank of Italy announced today. The deficit in October 1971 was 27 billion lire.

The bank said the rising volume and cost of imports was mainly responsible for the worsening deficit.

On the basis of preliminary figures, Italy's net official reserves at Oct. 31 stood at 3,6147 billion lire, down from 3,673.9 billion at Sept. 30. No year-earlier compart-sons were immediately available. due to the change in valuation of certain reserves following devalua-tion of the dollar last December.

Of the net reserves, convertible currencles accounted for 1,411.8 billion lire, down from 1,4793 billion lire at end-September. In recent months there have been several lira-devaluation scares, and Milan foreign exchange dealers said Banca d'Italia spent reserves, mostly dollars, to sup-port the lira.

BRIDGE

By Alan Truscott

Eest had a slight urge to double four spades, but wisely resisted the temptation. West led the club king, and followed with the ace. He then shifted to the heart six.

South had worked his strategy out well up to a point. He saw that in the cather unlikely event that East held the diamond king he would have to hope for a twotwo spade division. But if the diamond finesse worked, as expected, he could afford a safety play to guard against East holding four trumps-not unlikely, since West had implied shortness in spades by his couble.

South therefore won the third trick in his hand with the heart king and ran the diamond nine to find out who held the king. The nine won the trick, marking West with the king, and now South attempted the safety play. He led the spade seven, with a successful result: West discarded, revealing the situation, and South had no difficulty in entering dummy twice to trap East's remaining trumps.

In fact, South ran a con-contract. It was far from unlikely that West held four diamonds as part of his take-out double, so

East had played high-low in clubs, showing the queen; and the shift by West to a low heart made it clear that East held the queen or jack. So West beld nine highcard points at most in hearts and clubs, and needed the diamond king to justify his vulnerability take-out double. Without that card, he could have at most 12 points, including three "bad" points in spades.
So South should have assumed that the diamond king was on his left, and won the second trick in dummy. He should then have led the spade ten, and run it if East had been smart enough to play low. This would have guarded against the 4-0 division; produced an overtrick if West held a singleton spade nine; and given East a chance to make the mistake of covering with Q-9-2 or J-9-2,

-a ghost, invoking a goddess who is herself dispersed among The poems in this new book date from circa 1960, when she was 74. She had been inserted into literary history at 26, when Erra Pound invented "imagism" to supply a context for five poems of hers. A normal context would have been a book of poems, but Pound sensed that a book's worth would be a long time getting written. He had didactic uses for a "movement" anyhow, and "Hermes of the Ways," "Orchard." a few others might as well exemplify it as wait for an occure.

Unhappily the invented movement that was meant to float her reputation encapsulated it, and though she lived many more decades and extended her selfdefinition through many volumes. she has remained totally identified with the very little she had done when she was first heard of. It is as though five of the shortest pieces in "Harmonium" were to stand for the life's work of Wallace Stevens.

Her psychic life was contorted, Freud himself analyzed her, and she lived her last years at Kilsnacht on Lake Zurich under care that was partly psychiatric, partly directed toward the corporeal needs of an old weman who had broken her hip and walked only with difficulty. She kept resin and pine-cone burning in her room, and pondered books of her-metic symbolism. "Women," she thought, "are individually seeking, as one woman, fragments of the Eternal Lover. Bench Has Lung Surgery, Lesion Was Nonmalignant

CINCINNATI, Dec. 11 (UPI).-Doctors at Christ Hospital here said today that a lesion removed from the right lung of Cincinnati Reds catcher Johnny Bench was not malignant and Bench should have no trouble returning to baseball.

The Reds star was in surgery for more than two hours this morning while Dr. Luis Gonzalez removed the lesion, discovered in September during a routine examination. Team physician Dr. George Ballou said examination of a frozen section of the growth "revealed no existence of a tumor, but did reveal an inflammatory lesion."

Ballou said tests were being conducted on the lesion to de termine what caused its development on Bench's lung. He said the tests would take about three days to complete.

Ballou said "lesion" is a medical term which can include tumor, mole, cyst or several other conditions. He did not categorize the lesion removed from Bench's lung other than to say it was not a tumor and no malignancy existed. Ballou indicated that after 10 days in the hospital and about eight weeks of recuperation at home, the National League's most valuable player should be ready for spring

"A type of incision was used so that it was not necessary to cut into back muscles and it was not necessary to remove a rih." Ballou sald.

"Exactly," Miller said. Rodgers, Glover Picked on AP All-America

NEW YORK, Dec. 11 (AP).--Johnny Rodgers, the winner of the Heisman Trophy as the nation's outstanding college foothall player, and a Nebraska teammate, Rich Glover, recipient of the Outland Trophy as the country's top interior lineman, were named to the Associated Press All-America team for 1972.

Joining them on the first team are Charles Young, a tight end, and Richard Wood, a sophomore linebacker, both from No. 1-ranked Southern California, along with a third representative from Nebraska, Willie Harper, a defensive end.

Okishoma, which was runnerup to Nebraska in the 1971 ratings and is second to Southern California this year heading into the bowl games, also placed three players on the first squad -Greg Pruitt, a running back, Tom Brahaney, a center, and Arizona State, running backs. Joining Brahaney and Sizemore. on the offensive interior line are John Hicks of Ohio State, a tackle, and John Hannah of Alabama and Ron Rusnak of North Carolina, guards.

On the defensive unit with Glover, Wood and Moore are end Roger Goree of Baylor, tackle Greg Marx of Notre Dame, Randy Gradishar of Ohio State and John Skorupan of Penn State, line backers, and Calvin Jones of

Van Breda Kolff, 6-7 Guard, Leads Hot Vanderbilt Quintet

Vanderbilt, unranked and forgotten in the college basketball preseason polls, and Jan van Breda Kolif have gained early national prominence. The Com-modores have won five straight games, including two on the road, against Louisville and Kaneas The streak could grow before the Commodores get involved in the tough Southeastern Conference race against Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia and Kentucky, the principal contenders.

Jan. a 6-foot-7 backcourt man; directed Vanderbilt to a victory in its own invitation tournament as his father, Butch watched. The Commodores defeated Co-lumble in the first round, then beat Western Kentucky, 103-88, turday night behind Jan's 23point performence.

Butch van Breds Kolff coached for Princeton and the Los Angeles Lakers. Detroit Pistons and Phoenix Suns of the National Backetball Association

"Vanderbilt has good size, a lot well," said Jack Rohan, the Cu-lombia coach. "Van Breda Kolff plays the guard position the way you expect a guard to play, except that he's 6-7 and maybe even taller. His size gives him advaotages. Defensively, he takes up a lot of room and on offense he shoots over the smaller guards. He passes off very well, too, and be's a very unselfish player. He was named to the all-tournameot team."

Tha younger Van Breds Kolif appears the very opposite of his father on the court Butch had a habit of collecting technical fouls when he coached in the NBA, but the son defends his father's temper.

"If yoo watched a pro grame," Jan said, "I think you'd have a

"Exactly, suppose the hids, intead of growing and marketing their own pot, had gone to one of the big drug companies and 'We know how you can

London Critics Pick Olivier

LONDON, Dec. 11 (AP).-Laurence Olivier and Constance Cummings were named best actor and actress of the rear tonight for their performances in Eugene O'Neill's play "Long Day's Journey into Night."

In their annual awards, the London theater critics selected as hest play of 1972 "Jumpers" by Tom Stoppard, author of "Rosencrantz and Guildenstern."

What kind of response do you think they would have gotten?" "Well, I know the drug company wouldn't have thrown them out of the office," I said. You bet your sweet prescription they wouldn't. The first thing they would ask the kids is. What exectly do you have oo your

"And you think the drug company would market it?" I asked Ruddemaker.

"In a flash-with a multi-million-dollar media campaign to back it up," he replied,
"But wouldn't the government stop them from making it?" I

"Are you kidding? The government is not going to mess around with a big legitimate drug company that has friends in the Senate, the House and the White House. "Besides, other companies would hring out their own versions of 'Relax-A-Lot' and then the government would have to deal with the drug lobby as well. You're talking about hig political campaign contributions now," "I hadn't thought of that. If only the kids had used their heads they wouldn't be in all this trouble about pot." "It's never too late," Ruddemaker said. "I think the kids should turn over all their pot rights to the drug industry and say. You guys market it. We'd like to get out of sales.' In no time the American people who are fighting marijuana use would be lining up at drug counters all over the couptry screaming for fast fast relief."

I hesitate to accuse them (the U.S. government) of deliberate deception, but... they have no business to counsel taxpayers on coin investments.

The Controversial Silver Dollar Bonanza

By John H. Allan

NEW YORK (NYT).—The United States government, applying some of the hoopie of a patent medicine peddier, is suctioning 23 million old-time silver dollars, and some coin dealers contend the public is being doped.

"Mail now before you miss this opportunity." the General Services Administration urges in the 40 million brochures it is handing out in banks and post offices across the country. The coins are collectors' items.

The filer talks of the Comstock Lode, Nevada salcons, hurdygurdy girls and the big bonanza pouring through the Carson City, Nev., hranch mint. President Nixoo adds his endorsement. Worst of all, coin dealers contend, the government calls the dollars "sound investments," and that's semething no one

"Excellent Chance"

Numismatic News last week warned that the coms stand "an excellent chance" of falling below the $30 minimum price the government is asking and may remain well helow $30 for many years.

In the offering, the government is selling through Jan. 31, 1973, some 23 million silver dollars minted in the Carson City mint in 1882, 1883 and 1884. The coins were discovered in a sub-basement of the Treasury in 1964; more will be offered

The criticism is not valid, says Lance Swand, who joined the General Services Administration over a year ago to handle the intricate problem of marketing the coins the way Congress directed. The instructions were to get full numismatic value and help the taxpayer as much as possible.

Mr. Swann insists the Carson City dollars are indeed sound investments, but coin dealers disagree.

Norman Stack, a partner of Stack's, the country's "oldest and largest" coin dealers, urged the Securities and Exchange Commission to halt the GSA's promotion on the ground that its brochure misrepresents toe coins by describing them as "excellent for investment" and also for omitting to show how the sale will add to the supply of dollars of these particular years.

The government is offering 611,000 dollars minted in 1823, which is 54 percent of the total made in Carson City that year: 756,000 dollars from 1883 (63 percent) and 965,000 of 1884 186

Not for Sale

The actual number the GSA sells may be 5 to 10 percent smaller than these figures, for some of the coins are oot being offered because they are tarnished or nicked.

Even so, the "flood" of these coins will upset the market tremendously, Mr. Stack asserts, and other New York City dealers

The SEC, in reply to Mr. Stack, says no security was involved. Just because the government's pamphiet described the Carson City dollars as "excellent for investment" does not necessarily mean an offering within the jurisdiction of the agency. Thomas N. Holloway, associate director of the Division of Corporate Pinance, explains,

To Joel Coen of the Coen-Messer Company, a coin company here, the SEC's reply is unsatisfactory. The commission's regional office, he reports, told him back in 1963 to stop Wall Street Journal advertisements that described bags of silver dollars as "investments." . . .

To some numismatists, the GSA flier appears imprecise. The Rev. Richard T. Deters, director of Navier University in Circinnati, wrote to Sen. Robert Taft of Ohio to "strepuously object" to the language of the brochure.

The dollars are described as the "only coins with a double mint mark 'CC'" and so are a "collector's item." Not so, rays Father Deters. There are dimes, quarters, halves, Liberty Seated dollars and some gold coins with the CC mark.

An Assertion

They are "the last of the 30 percent silver dollars," the GSA states. Not so, says Pather Deters. The GSA, after the sale of the 1822, 1883 and 1884 dollars, will continue to have for disposal a total of 514,000 CC 90 percent silver dollars minted between 1878 and 1891.

The coins are "uncirculated specimens" and "mined from the Comitock lode." Neither statement can be proved beyond shadow of a doubt, declared Father Deters.

At the assertion that the CC dollars are "excellent for investments." Pather Deters becomes emphatic. "I hesitate to accuse them of deliberate deception, but in the face of their abysmal ignorance of the Morgan dollar price history they have no business to counsel texparers oo coin investments."

To support his view, Father Deters cites sharp declines in other Liberty head dollars, which were designed by a man named George T. Morgan. One minted in New Orleans io 1898, for example, dropped from $300 to 1963 to $5 in 1964.

Join S. Pitman, a retired Rochester, N.Y., chemical engineer and president of the 28,000-member American Numismatic Association, agrees that you can not predict investment value.

He also reports that some collectors are unhappy with the government's rule that the dollars are to be sold oo a no-return basis. Most dealers give numermatists 10 days to examine coins and return tuem if they do oot like them,

To buy fite Carson City dollars, any U.S. ellizen who wants to bid can fill out the order form at the bottom of the GSA brochure available at banks and post offices. An individual may bid only one coin of each year, and that bid must be at
